FLATHEAD LAKE SEISMIC SURVEY

This reflection seismic survey of Flathead Lake was conducted in August of 1970 and used the University of Montana research station at Yellow Bay, MT, as a base of operations. Another reflection seismic survey was conducted in 1982. The principal investigators of the 1970 survey were Richard Irwin and Gary Conley. The Question form gives a summary of the 1970 data acquisition, the use of the data in paper form from 1970 to 2005, the use of the data in digital form from 2006 to 2013, and the development of this archive. Scans of the survey line diagrams, the various seismic and geophysical sections, the various notes and cross sections, and the seismic face data are in the various parts of this collection.

Adenovirus

David J. Hall

Adenovirus, database # 2C3D Adenoviruses are medium-sized (90-100 nm), non-enveloped (without an outer lipid bilayer) icosahedral viruses with a double-stranded linear DNA genome. Adenoviruses are responsible for 5-10% of upper respiratory infections in children, and many infections in adults as well. The adenovirus is being tested as a gene vector for cancer.

Dengue virus

David J. Hall

Dengue virus, caused by the dengue virus, is a mosquito-borne virus that causes a fever, headache, muscle aches, and joint pain. It is a major public health problem in many parts of the world.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY PRINCIPALS AND PRESIDENTS

1866-1870: Richard Baxter Foster

1st PrincipalIn Office: 1866-1870

Visit site

Founded by the enlisted men and officers of the Civil War's 62nd and 65th Colored Infantries, Lincoln Institute was formally established on January 14, 1866. Richard Baxter Foster, a former first lieutenant in the 62nd Infantry, was named first principal of Lincoln Institute. From 1870-1880, W. B. Payne, Rev. Henry Smith, Samuel T. Mitchell, and A. C. Clayton served as principals. In 1880, Inman E. Page was named the 1st President of Lincoln Institute. In 1921, the Missouri Legislature passed a bill introduced by Walthall M. Moore, the first black American to serve in that body, which changed the name from Lincoln Institute to Lincoln University and created a Board of Curators to govern the University. In 2013, Dr. Kevin D. Rome, Sr. was appointed the 19th President of Lincoln University.

Women of Change is an art exhibit celebrating the women of Lincoln University and their contributions to the society. The exhibit presents images created by the students of the Drawing II course, which was taught by Rebecca Stonesanders. Each image, using various drawing mediums such as pencil or charcoal, is a representation of a woman who affected their local Jefferson City community and Lincoln University in a meaningful way.

The 18 women included in this exhibit are Elaine M. Aber, Carolyn Atkins, Carolyn Banner, Margaret Bush Wilson, Faye Tull Carter, Edna Chavis, Annette Digby, Zelma Lloyd Frank, Althea Gibson, Myrtle Smith Livingston, Carolyn Mahoney, Harriet Robinson, Ida Ballard Simon, Yvonne D. Stark - Wilson, Jaunita Kidd Stout, Hazel McDaniel Teabeau, Ouida Sprye Tolbert, and Josephine Silone Yates.

Abstract

Dyson, an author and scholar, has been listed by Ebony magazine as one of the 150 most powerful African Americans. His works, including Reflecting Black: African American Cultural Criticism, Come Hell or High Water: Hurricane Katrina and the Color of Disaster, and Is Bill Cosby Right? Or Has the Black Middle Class Lost Its Mind? have provoked national conversations on race and class. Written in 1994, Dyson's Making Malcolm: The Myth and Meaning of Malcolm X is considered one of the most important African-American works of the 20th century, while his I May Not Get There with You: The True Martin Luther King, Jr. is written to unveil the true radical nature of a man whom most remember or are taught was the ultimate peacemaker.

Comments

Dr. Michael Eric Dyson is the first speaker in the Droppin' Knowledge Lincoln University Lecture Series. The series was developed by Lincoln University Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost Dr. Said Sewell. The series is meant to bring engaging speakers to the campus and community.

Abstract

Wise, who began his career as Youth Coordinator and Associate Director of the Louisiana Coalition Against Racism and Nazism, now tours the country speaking to students on over 1,000 college and high school campuses. He also speaks to professional institutions on ways to remove racism from within their ranks. Wise's memoir White Like Me: Reflections on Race from a Privileged Son, is widely regarded for its depiction of how racism creates privilege for Whites, while negatively impacting persons of color. His five other works, including Dear White America: Letter to a New Minority, have also earned critical acclaim. His seventh work Culture of Cruelty: How America's Elite Demolish the Poor, Violate the Rich and Jeopardize the Future, is scheduled for release in early 2015.

Comments

Mr. Tim Wise is the second speaker in the Droppin' Knowledge Lincoln University Lecture Series. The series was developed by Lincoln University Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost Dr. Said Sewell. The series is meant to bring engaging speakers to the campus and community.

Josephine Silone Yates Literary Author Series

Follow

Josephine Silone Yates (1852 or November 15, 1859 – 1912) was one of the first black teachers hired at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Missouri. President Inman Edward Page considered it essential to replace the previously white faculty with black teachers, as role models for the school's African American students. The teachers lived on campus in the dormitories with the students. Josephine taught chemistry, elocution, and English literature. Upon her promotion to head of the natural science department, she became the first black woman to head a college science department and the first black woman to hold a full professorship at any U.S. college or university.

Yates was also significant in the African American women's club movement. She was a correspondent for the Woman's Era (the first monthly magazine published by black women in the United States) and wrote for other magazines as well. Yates was instrumental in establishing women's clubs for African American women: she was the first president of the Women's League of Kansas City (1893) and the second president of the National Association of Colored Women (1900–1904).
